BELIEVING
THE BASIC INGREDIENT OF SUCCESS

by PATRICIA YOUNG

"You have got to believe. No if's, and's, or but's. That was CASA general manager, Don Talbot's message to the Ontario coaches.

"One of the basic ingredients of coaching is believing. If you don't believe and dream a little bit you're not going to make it."

The dream is to be the number one swimming nation in the world by 1990-92, and that is something Talbot thinks is ours if we believe it.

"The right ingredients are here. A model T Ford and a Ferrari have the same ingredients but they don't perform the same way. We have the ingredients, we just have to work on the formula."

The formula Talbot proposes is one of excellence orientation. The way to develop excellence is to have a system which exploits the resources available.

"We have money available," said Talbot. "but I don't think we have a system that maximizes, 1) the money we put into our programs, 2) the facilities, 3) the expertise at all levels."

"This country can be number one in 1990-92 if we all get together," he said. "If we can get more people believing, if we can get our systems in place, if we can maximize the technical area, if we can organize the brains in this country who know swimming, then I think we can do it. We can make that Ferrari out of a model-T."

Unfortunately Canada's potential is often more obvious to foreigners than to Canadians.

"I came back to Canada by, choice," said Australian born Talbot, "because even from afar this country has so much potential."

"We've got more than any country in the world," he said. "We get letters every day from Australian and European coaches who want to come here. Everytime we go on tour there are coaches who want to return with us and coach in Canada."

Not sparing anyone Talbot lay the blame directly on the coaches. "Canada has a coaching problem, not a swimmer problem."

One area that raises Talbot's wrath is the flow of swimmers to the States. It is a trend he feels coaches must stop.

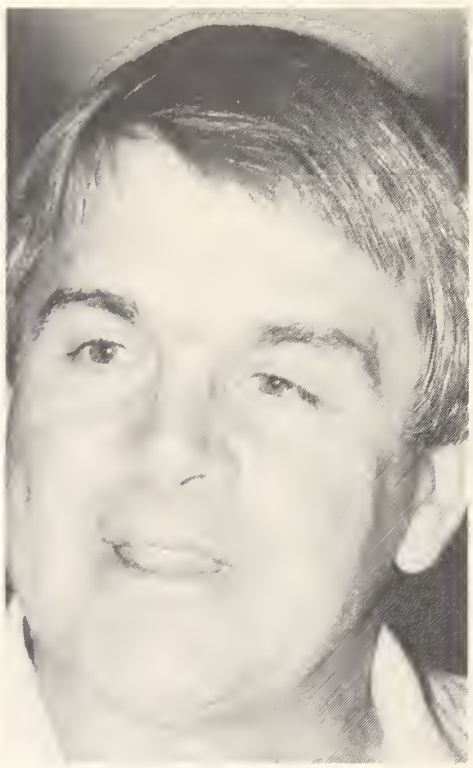
"We should bleed a little when our swimmers go to the States because we don't get them back the same people. We get them back as something less, not only as swimmers, but something less as Canadians."

Having had some of his own swimmers 'defect', Talbot is familiar with the problem. "I did not like Graham Smith going to Berkeley, " he said. "You'll have to talk long and hard to convince me that is what is good for Canadian swimming."

"Our coaches are determined to send our swimmers; our best swimmers at that, to the States. How do you learn to handle great swimmers if you send them off to mediocre American coaches?"

Pulling no punches he continued, "You polish your skills to become the world's greatest age group coaches."

But swimmers have to be supported if they remain in Canada. One way is by developing strong university programs. Talbot proposes, "a career path for our swimmers. They go in one end, just like academics and come out the other."



Don Talbot, General Manager of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association. He recently talked to the Ontario Swimming Coaches Association annual meeting on the key ingredient of a successful program. Talbot has 30 years of experience as a coach and administrator — his swimmers have won 29 Olympic medals representing Australia and Canada during the period 1960 - 1984.

These are programs that take money, time and organization.

Talbot's goal, for the next four years, is to have swimming become as dominant a sport in this country as hockey. It sounds spectacular, but Talbot believes it can happen. Active recruiting by coaches and a higher media profile, through aggressive marketing techinques, can make this dream possible. It all goes back to believing.

"If we can get the swimmers and coaches believing, then we'll be number one," he said. "If we can get this country as excited about an international swim series as they get for hockey, then we've got the country on our side."

"To me any kid who gets in the water and swims, in any program, has potential. If we can get them and their parents thinking swimming, we'll get that profile."

Coaches have to become more aggressive in their recuiting techniques if they're going to compete with other sports for the "right type" of athlete. They can't wait for them to walk in through their door.

"The successful coach recuits well," Talbot stated. "It's not a dirty word. It means you're telling people you believe in your program."

The development of an international meet series is one of Talbot's future goals. It will be a new type of event which will see the top swimming nations competing for prize money. Talbot hopes that one day the athletes will be able to win money, similar to the way track athletes do.

By staging international meets Talbot is elevating Canada's status as a swimming centre. With increased exposure comes increased prestige.

"People should be a little bit in awe of us," he said. "When we walk on the deck they should think 'Oh oh. Here comes the Canadians.' Except for Victor or Alex, that doesn't happen."

After listening to Talbot, the goals for 1990-92 seem far from impossible.

"If we're going to win we have to fill up the holes. We have to develop a system (university, programs, international series, club programs) which will put us into the Ferrari level and maybe beyond."

"The ingredients are here. We've just got to put them together better."

HICKEN SPRINTS TO CANADIAN RECORDS

by PATRICIA YOUNG

"World class: that sounds pretty awesome. I see myself as standing in the door way."

After setting Canadian records in the 50 and 100 free (23.63, 50.92), Toronto sprinter Blair Hicken is aiming for the 1986 world championships in Madrid. He admits that while he is the fastest sprinter in Canada he still has a lot of work to do to crack the finals in Madrid.

"I dont't understand how any sprinter can call themselves world class when Matt Biondi is so far ahead of everyone," twenty year old Blair said.

"Although I'm fastest to the 50 in Canada, and my 50 split is pretty reasonable in the world, it certainly doesn't stand up to the guys who are going under 50 seconds.

"Sprinting has become very exciting," he said. "Matt Biondi has opened the doors. Everyone seemed to stagnate after Rowdy Gaines set the record in 1981. Matt is enticing the others to get down there."

Training at the University of Toronto under coach Byron MacDonald, Blair is discovering what he has to do to be ranked in the top 10 in the world.

"I'll have to be out a little faster. My start has been a problem. It's improving, but I wouldn't consider it world class yet.

"We started doing reaction drills last year so that when you stand up on the blocks and hear the gun, you move.

"After you've developed that instinct you need the power to explode. That's where weights come in."

Distance swimmers may grit their teeth but Blair feels that, "sprinters have to be treated differently. You can't train your splits regularly, even when you're tapering. The coach and swimmer have to be able to accept that."

"I don't think I was really sprinting until the end of last season. I had just been going faster and faster," Blair said. "My 100 free split was 24.5. I didn't do that until much later into the long course season as a flat start 50, let alone as a split."

If a sprinter doesn't recognize and accept this fact they can become discouraged and depressed.

"At this point in the season I don't have any way of judging my progress. It's easy to get depressed when you're nowhere near your best times and people you should be beating in workouts are beating you."

So we're back to the old problem of sprinting: the mental game. A sprinter has to believe he is capable of doing the times even though his mid-season performance may not indicate this.

The importance of pyschology in sprinting is heightened during competition.

"To succeed internationally I need more confidence. The first thing I have to get by," said the six foot, 160 lb sprinter, "is the visual aura most sprinters have. Walking up to the blocks and being surrounded by giants can be intimidating.

"In Canada I know my competitors, so I'm not thrown off if someone makes a move during the race. In international competition I have to learn to keep focused on my own race.

"You have to be mentally prepared because you don't have time to think about the seven other guys. It's just you.

"I don't even know where I am until the 60 metre mark, after the turn. Everything up to that point is automatic. That is that way the whole race should be."

As part of his mental preparation Blair uses race simulation. By mentally rehearsing the race, he can focus on his strengths and work on 'mental conditioning'.

"Race simulation is great, sitting back and going through the race in your mind," cautions Blair, "but to do the race at speed helps prepare not only your mind, but your body."

Along with using mental rehearsal, Blair has learned to take advantage of his streamline build to overcome problem areas in his race.

"In a race you can have a pretty big wave coming off the wall. It's a real talent to get through it, over it or under it.

"Because I'm not powerful enough to go through the wave or long enough to go under it I try to glide over it. In my race visualization I think of myself as an apple bobbing over the waves," he explains. "Those little things make your race different from anyone else's."

Although he is the fastest man in Canada, Blair did not have a spectacular age group career. "I never even got out of Ontario," he commented. "I don't know what happened to the swimmers who were ahead of me. Some lost interest and others I started to beat. It's a long haul and young sprinters should be prepared for that."

Sprinting success comes with maturity. It's noteworthy that there are no male sprinters under the age of 17 who are world ranked.

Unlike many sprinters, Blair doesn't consider himself a 'drop dead' sprinter. "I don't have fantastic speed; 25 metres is not my specialty," he laughes. "I've been told that physiologically, my best race would be 150 metres, but since they don't that I'll just have to stick with the 100."

STROKE ANALYSIS LEADS TO RECORD SWIM

A new approach to improving swimming techniques involving computers has been developed by Rein Haljand, head of the water sports department of the Tallin Training Institute, USSR.

Haljand, whose international experience includes instructing at the advanced training centre in Mexico under the Olympic Solidarity Program, has been carrying out research for more than 15 years.

"We designed a system consisting of four cine cameras," says Haljand, "One of them is installed over the surface of the pool and the other three are underwater."

"The synchronized cameras move along the rails and film a swimmer from different angles. The operator can move the camera at any speed he likes."

By analyzing a still, about 20 key points on the swimmer's body can be pin pointed.

The technique involves examining a whole set of stills and feeding all the information into a computer.

It takes the computer 30 minutes to process the data and produce a pattern of the swimmer's technique.

The system describes swimming styles by 40 characteristics. Each complex meovment is then broken into elements and analyzed seperately. Since it has been proven that all movements are linked, only the key ones need to be analyzed to get an overall picture.

From this data a model of the ideal swimmer can be created and the individual can be compared to this.

This method was used to study backstroker Sergi Zabolotnov over the past four years.

In 1981 Zabolotnov's range of speed changes within one cycle of movments and his 42 stroke per minute rhythm were less than those of the world's best.

In 1984 Zabolotnov's technique was evaluated by the computer, and the machine was right. During the Friendship-84 competition in Moscow, Zabolotnov beat Rick Carey's world 200m backstroke record, setting a new mark of 1:58.41. This was bettered during 1985 by another Soviet swimmer, Igor Polianksi with 1:58.14.

But how is technique improved?

The computer is set the task of finding out what factors cause the swimmer's speed to increase.

The machine suggests various ways for swimmers to improve their sytle. The coach then chooses the most suitable one.

The aim is to create programs which would enable the computer to answer questions such as: what would happen if certain elements of a swimmer's technique changed?

Haljand has delievered reports at symposia in Finland, Holland and Belgium on computer aided coaching.

Of course it is ultimately up to the swimmer to incorporate the recommendations into his training.

Sergei Zabolotnov certainly benefited from the computer's friendly advice.

Rein Haljand, head of Aquatic Sports of the Tallinn Teachers Training Institute in Estonia, discusses the performance of two swimmers with their coach.

THE OLYMPIC EXPERIENCE

BY MIKE WEST

This article appeared in the Summer 1985 issue of Champion , Canada's High Performance Amateur Sport Magazine.

Mike West represents the Region of Waterloo SC and is coached by Cliff Barry. He is the most successful backstroker to represent Canada internationally with medals at the Commonwealth, Pan Ams, Universiade and the Olympics.

Almost a year has passed since the Los Angeles Olympic Games. It was there that Canadian athletes proved themselves before a world audience and in the span of two weeks, our best collected 44 medals, four times our winnings at Montreal in 1976.

Many Canadians have forgotten the remarkable achievements in Los Angeles, but the athletes who were there will never forget the Olympic experience.

For some, unfortunately, the Olympics weren't all they were expected to be. Even now, many competitors, myself included, are still trying to sort out their Olympic emotions, and put into perspective this once in a life time experience. For some, the Games were the highlight of their athletic careers while for others they were a great disappointment in terms of competitive performance.

Everyone views the Olympic Games as the pinnacle of amateur sport, but when one performs below personal expectations, the whole Olympic experience can be ruined. Although many won Olympic medals, what about those who didn't make it to the podium? What is their reward? Regrettably, it is very little, if anything at all.

People back home may claim that to compete in the Olympics is an honour and thrill in itself but when it comes right down to it, winning is everything. In his Olympic creed, Baron Pierre de Coubertin stated that: "The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle." While this may have been fine and dandy in the Baron's time, and I admire his intentions, it just does not hold true today. We are living in a society that is increasingly achievement oriented, and beating the next guy is the name of the game. The Baron stated further: "The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well." But with the public's expectations resting like a lead weight on the shoulders of our Olympic athletes, it is the victory that is essential.

Seventy three Canadian athletes made it to the podium in Los Angeles. They deserve every bit of recognition they have received, but perhaps we have created a somewhat one sided Olympic story. We have largely ignored the accomplishments of those who didn't win medals. While the medalists basked in the glory of Olympic success, the rest had to settle for Snicker bars, Moomik shirts and Vidal Sassoon haircuts.

I am not downplaying Canada's Olympic medalists. I came home with two. But for a while, I felt I was watching a dream slip out of reach, like so many other fine athletes in L.A.. After failing to qualify for the 200 metre backstroke final, an event in which I was "favoured" to win a medal, I suddenly viewed the Olympics from an entirely different perspective. I was nearly overcome with emotions I had never before experienced — anger, annoyance, helplessness — and I lost all self-esteem. It seemed like a nightmare from which there was no escape, and everywhere were constant reminders that these were the Olympics, especially those reminders hanging from ribbons around the necks of those who had won. I was lucky. I had a second chance to overcome my poor performances and prove myself, but for many, the Olympics were a one shot deal.

And what have we done to recognize the people who worked just as long and as hard as the others to achieve their Olympic dreams? Our performances in Los Angeles were a 436 member team effort. To honour and reward these athletes, who overshadowed a federal election and made Page One headlines for two weeks, sports editors polled by the Canadian Press named the Edmonton Oilers the Canadian team of 1984. I still can't figure that one out.

The Olympic Games are a taxing experience, emotionally and physically. We all want to hold on to the glow for as long as we can, yet it is inevitable that as the days and weeks pass, it slips farther away. Now it is back to reality, and many of us look forward to new competition and opportunity with renewed interest.

But for those of us who competed in Los Angeles, or have competed in any Olympic Games, there are very special memories that can never be erased.

We've earned those memories, and they are ours forever. □

1985 SWIM STATS

The following 12-page section is a summary of the long course season for 1985.

The United States holds on to men's swimming supremacy mostly on the incredible performances of sprinter Matt Biondi.

Biondi broke the 49 second barrier with his 48.95 and anchored the USA to world marks in the 4x100 medley and free relays, thanks to his 47.7 splits!

The German Democratic Republic is the leading women's power, not so much in numbers, but in the high level of excellence of it best athletes. Over 50% of the swims in the women's top three are from the GDR!

Canada retains its ranking of fifth (men) and fourth (women) in both categories as our Olympic gold medal winners took it easier than in the past three years.

World records were bettered in five individual and two relays among the men. In addition to Biondi's heroics, Michael Gross of the FRG gave further evidence of his unique talent with a record swim in the 400 free. An event he has never taken seriously. He regained the 200 fly record which he lost during the 1984 Olympics.

Soviet swimming lost its momentum and could claim only one world mark. Curiously in the same event that another Soviet swimmer set the mark last year. Igor Polianski is the new backstroke hope of the URS, as he leads both world rankings in the backstroke.

Only one world mark was bettered in women's svents. The GDR's Silke Horner lowered the 200 breaststroke to 2:28.33 a 3/100ths improvement over the former mark.

Alex Baumann is the only one of our 1984 gold medal winners to retain a first place ranking. His 2:02.25 in the 200 i.m. leads the world, but in the 400 i.m. he ranks third.

Backstroke is the strongest men's event. Five swimmers are among the world top 50 and at least two are among the top 8.

Canadian male swimmer-of-the year Mike West earned this award on the strength of his Pan Pacific silver medal swim in the 200 back.

Canadian women had their best ranking in the 200 fly with Jill Horstead (3rd) and Donna McGinnis (4th). The swim were done at nationals and were not sustained at the Pan Pacifics.

Cindy Ounpuu, with a fourth place world ranking, a Canadian and Commonwealth record in her gold medal swim at the Pan Pacific earned female athlete-of-the-year for CASA.

SWIM Magazine is publishing world rankings 50-deep, with an additional 50 Canadian best times. This extensive statistical information includes an abbreviation of the meet at which the performance was done.

In an attempt to analyze and rank the relative strength of each country we have considered three categories:

- % that each country occupies in the 50-deep list
- % in the top 16
- % in top three

These three categories were ranked and scored. Each category was assigned numerical values increasing in value.

Scoring a ranking list seldom reflects the reality of actual competition. This weighted ranking of the nations gives an indication of depth with an emphasis on excellence.

Only individual events were scored.

The depth of these rankings are made possible by a network of statisticians worldwide, that continually exchange meet results. TAG rankings in Canada are the basis for all this data. The use of a computer makes it possible to store and sort all this data. Over 40,000 performances have been stored in 38 events ranging from 11-year-olds to world-class, just for the long course season.

Steve Gombai, 15, Windsor AC

14 years	Long Course	Age 15	Short Course
400 free	(23) 4:29.67	1500 free	(24) 17:39.90
1500 free	(37) 18:03.53	100 breast	(9) 1:10.76
100 breast	(11) 1:13.10	200 breast	(2) 2:27.84
200 breast	(1) 2:32.70	400 i.m.	(20) 5:00.04
400 i.m.	(8) 4:58.82

The top rated 200 breaststroker last summer in the 13-14 age class, Steve has now moved up to the next level. "I'm chasing Brad Creelman and Matthew Young," he said. "I definitely have to work harder now that I'm racing the older swimmers."

Steve has been coached for the past year by Tom Arusoo, "I like his approach to swimming," Gombai said. "I get a lot of variety in the workouts and he continually works on my technique helping to improve it."

Windsor doesn't have a long course pool so Steve has to go into Michigan during the summer. "We travelled to Warren, just outside of Detroit, for four hours a week of long course. This winter we'll have a six-day training camp in Brantford during the Christmas break."

Steve favourite workouts consist of 5x500 pulling breaststroke or broken 200's.

His immediate goal is to move up to being a medal winner at nationals.

Joe Agocs, 14, Ajax Aquatic Club

	Long Course		Short Course
50 free	(32) 27.03	50 free	(1) 25.58
100 back	(26) 1:07.87	200 free	(6) 2:07.70

		100 breast	(5) 1:13.18
		200 breast	(6) 2:39.67
		100 fly	(12) 1:05.14
		200 i.m.	(6) 2:23.22

The early season leader in the 50 free, 14-year-old Joe Agocs recently joined Ajax AC after seven years in Sarnia.

"My times have dropped considerably since coming to swim with coach Paul Meronen," Agocs said. "I've been improving with every swim, this fall."

The grade nine student is making the most of the opportunities at Ajax. "We have a very competitive group to train with. I am chasing Steve Verseghy and Olympic champion Anne Ottenbrite, but can hardly keep up to them.

"Coach Meronen looks for stroke perfection and insists that every drill and repeat be done right."

Agocs aims at a spot on the Youth Team in 1986 and looks to an Olympic spot eventually. "My best event now is the 50 free, but I am really working on the 100 breast."

Jason Lukeman, 12, Thunderbolt AC

	Long Course		Short Course
50 free	(1) 27.53	50 free	(4) 28.04
100 free	(1) 59.83	100 free	(5) 1:01.31
200 free	(3) 2:11.99	200 free	(30) 2:17.06
400 free	(30) 4:55.91	400 free	(44) 4:54.65
100 back	(27) 1:16.15	100 back	(–) 1:17.88
100 breast	(17) 1:23.23
200 i.m.	(15) 2:36.75

Having asthma has not handicapped Jason. Ranked first in both the 50-100 free last summer, as 12-year-old, he's only the third boy to better the minute in a 50 m pool at his age.

Speed comes naturally to Jason, but endurance has to be carefully developed. Phil Evans, Jason's coach for the past year is working at developing his 400 i.m. within two years.

Training time is limited to eight hours a week during the winter as the Port Hawkesbury (N.S.) recreation department has priority use of the pool.

Training sets include 40x25 kick on various strokes, 8x200 free and surgical tubing assisted 25's.

Jason is 13 now and aims at competing in the Esso Youth Championships. Future goals include the Canada Games in 1989 and the Olympics in 1992.

SPEEDO

Introducing LustreFlex. Bright and shining new light from Speedo.

Speedo's newest flash of inspiration is smooth, shimmering LustreFlex, a remarkable stretch polyester that isn't rough and dull like stretch nylon. Yet, it surpasses stretch nylon in toughness and it won't degrade at all during the long hours you spend in a chlorinated pool. The unique, two-way stretch of ultra-light LustreFlex also provides the fluid fit and comfort world-class swimmers demand. Get into LustreFlex from Speedo. You're going to shine.
